Editor’s Notes on Four Pieces for String Ensembles with Solo Woodwinds

The four short demonstration pieces featured here come from Part 4 of Hilarión Eslava’s five-part treatise on Composition ("Escuela de composición"), which deals with the subject of Instrumentation and was published in 1870. These beautiful, highly original compositions are found in Section 3 of the treatise, which Eslava titles “De los instrumentos de viento-madera” ("Of [About] woodwind instruments"). They are meant to serve as illustrations of scoring techniques for the flute, oboe, clarinet, and bassoon playing solo parts accompanied by small string ensembles. Eslava admonishes that as these are instruments powered by human breath, “they must be treated musically as voices would.”

As these are relatively short pieces and all four are similarly scored, I have chosen to group them as a set. They flow well together and could perhaps be performed as a four-part concertino highlighting each of the four woodwind instruments in turn. With their harmonious, openly Romantic style they might also make a marvelous setting for a small ballet suite!

In his book, Eslava goes into some depth explaining the techniques meant to be highlighted for each instrument. Here, for brevity, I have only translated the basic descriptions of each of the pieces:

Modelo Nº4

Marked Andante and scored for solo flute, two violins, viola, cello, and contrabass.

“Condiciones. 1ª. Solo de flauta; 2ª. Obligado de viola; 3ª. Uso del pizzicato en el acompañamiento de cuerda.”

("Features. 1st. Solo flute; 2nd. Viola obbligato; 3rd. Use of pizzicato in the string accompaniment.")

Modelo Nº5

Marked Tempo di pastorella and scored for solo oboe, two violins, two violas, cello, and contrabass.

“Condiciones. 1ª. Solo de oboe; 2ª. Uso del sul ponticello y del col palo en la cuerda; 3ª. Dos violas separadas.”

("Features. 1st. Solo oboe; 2nd. Use of sul ponticello and col legno in the strings; 3rd. Two separate viola parts.")

The composer additionally notes that it is understood that when the instruction staccato appears in the strings, playing sul ponticello ceases, despite there not being a more explicit loco indication.

[NOTE – A more exquisite, standalone rendition of the Pastorella based on a re-edition by our collaborator Anai Telletxea, oboist and student at the Conservatorio Superior de Música de Aragón in Zaragoza, Spain, is also available on the hilarioneslava.org site. Anai’s version is based on the original Eslava “Escuela de Composición” score and a later arrangement by Joaquín Pildain Araolaza (1927-1997, Basque organist, composer and musicologist –see https://dbe.rah.es/biografias/97438/joaquin-pildain-araolaza (in Spanish).]
Modelo Nº6
Marked Andante and scored for solo clarinet, two violins, viola, cello solo, and contrabass.

“Condiciones. 1ª. Solo de clarinete; 2ª. Uso del tremolo grave y agudo en la cuerda; 3ª. Acompañamiento de algún interés en el violín 1º y en el violón.”

(“Features. 1st. Clarinet solo; 2nd. Use of low- and high-pitched tremolo by the strings; 3rd. A somewhat more elaborate scoring of the first violin and the cello.”)

Modelo Nº7
Also marked Andante and scored for solo bassoon, two violins, viola, cello solo, and contrabass.

“Condiciones. 1ª. Solo de fagot; 2ª. Uso de sordina en la cuerda; 3ª. Diseños dialogados en el acompañamiento; 4ª. Bajo glosado al fin”

(“Features. 1st. Bassoon solo; 2nd. Use of sordina (or sordino) or muting by the strings; 3rd. A phrasal design in the accompaniment; 4th. An adorned bass voice at the end.”)
