Editor’s Notes for the Coplas para el Septenario de Nuestra Señora de los Dolores (CDMA Version)

We were recently provided this piece by the Centro de Documentación Musical de Andalucía (CDMA), and immediately recognized it was a version of a piece I transcribed a year ago (which originated from the Monasterio de Santa Isabel la Real of Granada, Spain) and can be viewed at https://musescore.com/user/29381772/scores/6544562/s/65rhW4 or on our website.

Even though the two pieces are very similar, I decided to transcribe the CDMA version too, as there are some noticeable differences. The main differences are a more interesting (albeit still simple) accompaniment in the CDMA version, as well as slightly different lyrics and prosody. Since both the Granada and CDMA pieces were undated copies that were probably done much later than Eslava’s original composition (the CDMA version even includes typewritten lyrics), I have no way to know which of the two versions is the more “authentic”. Also, the CDMA version only provided six verses; however, I have included the 7th verse featured with the Granada version, so it completes the seven sorrows of the Septenario, as explained below.

In the Roman Catholic tradition, a Septenario or Septenary is a seven consecutive-day cycle dedicated to devotion and prayer to God, the Virgin and the Saints to ask for grace or intercession, or to celebrate or honor a specific religious event in the life of the church. Although on the Catholic church calendar the Feast of our Lady of Sorrows (Nuestra Señora de los Dolores) falls on September 15th, in the Spanish Catholic tradition the Septenary of Our Lady of Sorrows is most frequently celebrated during the week immediately preceding Holy Week, ending on the Friday of Sorrows (Viernes de Dolores), a solemn remembrance of the sorrowful Blessed Virgin Mary on the Friday before Palm Sunday.

The coplas or verses used in the Septenary are meant to convey a sense of anguish while honoring a suffering Mary. The composition and meter of the coplas are very specific and are referred to as a décima espinela, as each stanza consists of 10 verses. Each stanza describes one of the seven dolores or sorrows endured by the Virgin, namely (1) The prophecy of Simeon that a sword would pierce her heart, (2) the flight into Egypt, (3) the three-day loss of Jesus at the Temple in Jerusalem, (4) the meeting on the road to Calvary, (5) witnessing the suffering of her Son on the Cross, (6) Jesus removed from the cross and placed in her arms, and (7) laying of her Son in the tomb. A Hail Mary is said at the end of each stanza. In the traditional Spanish iconography of Our Lady of Sorrows, these seven dolores are represented by seven daggers (or sometimes just one) piercing Mary’s heart.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>1.</th>
<th>Si las dulces palabras del ángel inundaron de gozo tu alma, de un profeta la fúnebre calma la llenó de amargura y dolor. Te predijo que Aquel que en tus brazos presentabas al templo piadosa en la cima del Gólgota umbrosa le verías morir por su amor.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Refrain</td>
<td>Estribillo (se repite con cada estrofa): ¡Por tus dolores ten compasión! Pide y alcanza nuestro perdón.</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2.</td>
<td>Si los Reyes de Oriente adoraron al Infante, Dios Hombre en pobreza,</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>1.</th>
<th>Just as the sweet words of the angel flooded your soul with joy, those spoken by a serene prophet, filled it with bitterness and sorrow. He foretold that He, whom in your arms you presented in the temple devoutly, at the summit of a darkened Golgotha you would watch die for His love.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Refrain</td>
<td>Refrain (repeated with every stanza): By your grief have mercy! Beseech and attain for us pardon.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
| 2. | Just as the Magi from the East worshipped the holy Infant, God turned Man in poverty,
un tirano con odio y vileza
degollar los infantes mandó.
Y del fiel corazón traspasado,
las maternas delicias ostentas
y al Egipto, Señora, te ausentes
con el Hijo que al mundo salvó.

¿Quién es esa Mujer que angustiada,
vacilante y llorosa camina?
¿Quién es esa Mujer tan divina?
¿Quién es esa Mujer celestial?:
esa triste Mujer es María
que en el templo perdió a su Hijo amado
y en su rostro divino ha grabado
la congoja su huella fatal.

Si en el Santo Lugar le perdiste
a tu amado Jesús, hallas luego
y conozces la voz que con fuego
entre doctos, sapiente arguyó.
En la calle amargura, oh María,
ya lo encuentras sangriento, agobiado,
con el peso del leño cargado
de ese leño mortal do expiró.

Del discípulo amado en compañía
abatida a tu Hijo seguiste
y de agudo dolor presa fuiste
cuando al Monte Calvario llegó.
Allí el eco repite el sonido
de clamores, martillos, y voces,
se suspende, oh Madre, y entonces
al Dios justo clavado se vio.

Oscúrécese el sol de repente,
se cumplió la fatal profecía.
Mira, mira a tu Hijo, María,
mira, mira, cadáver está.
Ya desciende del árbol sagrado
y en tus brazos lo ponen, Señora,
y ese pecho que amante le adora
el puñal de dolor hiere ya.

Hijo mío, exclamaba, quién puede
comparar tan terrible martirio.
Quién al ver de tu Madre el delirio
dura muerte intentara, traidor.
Del sepulcro la losa te oculta
a esos hijos que les riega el llanto.
Sola quedó, Hijo mío, y por tanto
sólo espero morir de dolor.

a tyrant with hatred and evil
ordered infants beheaded.
And with your faithful heart pierced,
in your motherly care,
to Egypt, Lady, you flee
with the Son who saved the world.

Who is that anguished Woman
who so unsteadily and in such grief walks?
Who is that Woman so divine?
Who is that Woman from heaven?:
That grieving Woman is Mary
Who in the temple lost her beloved Son
And in whose divine visage
sadness has etched her fatal mark.

Though in the Holy Place you lost Him
your beloved Jesus you later found and recognized the fiery voice
with which He with wise men argued.
In the street bitterness, Oh Mary,
you now find Him bleeding, exhausted,
under the heavy timber’s burden,
the fatal timber on which he expired.

Accompanied by the beloved disciple,
dejected your Son you followed,
and deep pain you suffered
when He Mount Calvary did reach.
There the echo repeats the sound of the clamors, hammers, and voices.
It stops, oh, Mother, and then
our just God is seen nailed.

The sky suddenly darkens,
the fatal prophecy fulfilled.
Behold, behold your Son, Mary,
look, look at Him, only His body remains.
He is lowered from the sacred tree
and unto your arms he is brought, our Lady,
and that breast, which lovingly worships Him,
has by the dagger already been wounded.

My Son, she exclaimed, who can bear such terrible torture.
Who upon seeing your Mother in such agony
could with a harsh death betray Her.
The slab of the sepulcher conceals you
from the children in their weeping.
I am left alone, my Son, and therefore can only death in my grief await.